TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 15.

Washington Was Human. Fairfax county, Va., is one of the fairest and most fatly rich of all the O d Dominion counties George Washington dwelt there aforetime, and the moccasin tracks of the father of his country in the mud of Fairfex county was a familiar epectacle 100 years

I believe in hero worthip-that is, if one has a valid, sure enough hero and none of your pinchback. Hero worship at least invites the human eye cutward and upward, which is a good thing in itself. For all of which George Washington has ever et jyed considerable repute, with me as an everyday solid silver hero, who deserved every foot of his monument. I have never been able to look at the pale, plain obelisk which towers to his memory, without emotion. Whether the turmoil which fils my breast on these occasions arises from a recollection of his deeds, or the reflection that the huge gravestone cos: $1 180,000, and that some one wis infallibly skinned therein, I have been too busy to determine. I must it is the memory of Washington's deeds, and incline to think it is.

But this is not, after all, what I set out to chronicle. I was permitted the sight of a funny old book the other day. It is one of the very old time court records of Fairfax county, of an bour when Lord Fairfax himself held court. The book accompanied some Yankees north during the wer. They had a taste for the quaint and ancient in literature and cabbaged it, to minister to heir joy.

One dying, the other grown too old to read, on his conscience spurring, returns it to the clerk of that ocunty. The book contains 909 pages and is protected by rawhite covers, b and with clasps and fewn with cargut.
The abraied paper employed is of a duil, leaden color, and the writing is as legible aon the fer away provincial day when Daniel McCarthy and J. hn. West first made the entries and took their fees therefor in broadleafed tobacco. I was somewhat shocked in looking over this tome to learn that George looking over this tome to learn that George Washington, our George, inled you, was forever being indicted and tried for failing to pay his texes. That never contemplated Washington as a taxpayer, but supposed he met his State and county efficient with the rest of his neighbors, but it seems he did not. The sheriff would bear with him patiently for a time and go around and try to coax it out of him, but when forbearance ceased to be a virtue and it came down to the last chicken on the roost, he would invoke the sid of court, and the recalcitrant Washington would be indicted. This happened with a diamaying frequency, as the cid record shows, and then when it did happen the radion's parent, realizing fate, would step in an attacks. shows, and then when to do happen the state up-parent, realizing fate, would step in an 1 satule up-so, after all, George Washington pand his taxes; but he made the officials weary before they go-them. The old record describes a time from 17. G to 1763.—Dan Quinn in Kansas City Times.
